Neuropathic pain is one of the most difficult medical conditions to treat, only 40-60% of patients treated with pharmacological management experience even partial relief and some patients find opioid analgesics and Tramadol overly sedating and impair their cognition. These patients may benefit from interventional pain management techniques that directly address the source of their pain.

This session aims to increase understanding of neuropathic pain and new interventional techniques available.

Discussion includes:

- new interventional pain management techniques for patients with neuropathic pain
- the role of the GP specialist in correct referral and ongoing management.

Speaker:

Dr Joshua Daly, Pain Medicine Specialist
FANZCA, FFPMANZCA, MBBS, BSc (Med), CIME

Dr Joshua Daly is a specialist anaesthetist and pain medicine physician who has presented at major national conferences on the topics of crisis management for anaesthetists and emerging pain therapies for specialist pain medicine physicians. He has a special interest in the accurate diagnosis and use of evidence based treatments for chronic pain conditions with the goal of facilitating maximal functional recovery.
